At 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening the Moran house, Emlenton's leading hotel, was found to be on fire. In spite of the bravest efforts of the firemen, the fire, fanned by the gale, was soon out of all control and the building was totally destroyed. The loss is stated at $12,000 with only slight insurance.

—A sled load of sapling stove wood passing through the street yesterday attracted considerable attention, it being the first event of the kind witnessed in Tionesta in many years, and was suggestive of the days of long ago, while conveying a slight hint of what may happen again should our natural gas supply continue to decline.

—A number of enthusiastic fans gathered at the Tionesta Clubs rooms last night and formed a base ball organization with R. A. Walker, manager, A. J. Hallinen, captain, and H. T. —Did you notice how like a lion the month Marched in? It has been many years, we dare say, since any inhabitant of this latitude has witnessed a gale so terrific as that which blew throughout Sunday night and Monday, even in the breezy month of March. But if the blustery old Storm King will "lapse off" a little toward the close and slide out like the wee lamb, so as to bring the troutling season in with fairly good weather, all may yet be forgiven.

—The statement of the Oil City Trust Company published elsewhere in this issue in response to the call of the Commissioner of Banking under date of February 20th, indicates that it is still well in the lead of financial institutions in this section of the country. This splendid banking institution is the pride of Oil City as well as one of the great banks of the country, having a capital and surplus of over $1,000,000.00 and deposits exceeding $4,250,000.00. These figures do not include $1,024,257.00 of trust deposits.

—Ross Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Howe, once a resident of Tionesta, died suddenly of ulcers of the stomach on the 14th of February last, at a hospital at Brattleboro, Vt., whither he had gone on a business mission a few days prior from his home in Brighton, Mass. He was aged about 38 years, married, and is survived by his wife; also his parents who are residents of New Bedford, Mass. As a bright, lively boy the deceased is kindly remembered by many Tionesta people while the family resided here nearly twenty-five years ago.

—The Boston Stars' entertainment at Bovard's hall Wednesday evening was enthusiastically received by the select audience that attended their performance. The troupe is made up entirely of colored people most of whom hail from Oil City. The two leaders are Miss Valerie Johnson soprano, and Mr. Frank Bell, tenor, and their duets were very sweetly rendered and they were obliged to respond to a number of encores. The other members of the company, Miss Jackson, pianist, Prof. Henderson, director, and Mrs. Polley, alto and dramatic reader, rendered their parts well and received many plaudits.

—Joseph B. Keegan, of Crown, who has held the pastorate in the Catholic church, at that place for a number of years, has been transferred to Emporium, a much larger field and will take his new charge the first of the month. Rev. Keegan was in Kane last evening and was a guest of S. Barrett, Jr. and family at the Windsor hotel. Father Downey, the present pastor of the Emporium church, has been transferred to Franklin and will go to his new field of labor the first of the month. Both are well known priests and have many friends who will be pleased to learn of their new appointments.—Kane Republican, Friday. Rev. Fr. T. A. Rooney of Sharon will succeed to the pastorate of the church at Crown.

—Morelle Redfield had a close call from freezing to death, Tuesday night of last week near his home near Shamberg, between Pleasantville and Titusville. The young man was driving a newly purchased horse to a cutter and was enroute to Titusville. The horse became frightened and threw the young man out and against a stone. The impact and loss of blood from a small scalp wound rendering him unconscious. There he lay by the roadside and would have perhaps frozen to death in a very short time but for the actions of the horse. It returned to its original owner driverless and he suspected that something had happened followed the tracks in the snow with the result that young Redfield was found and resuscitated. He is a son of F. W. Redfield, and a nephew of Mrs. Jacob Smearbaugh of this place.

—Warren D. Goodman, a pumper employed by the United Natural Gas Co., had his face and hands badly burned by an explosion of gas on the Good farm near Venus, Venango county, Saturday morning. There was a small leak in the Webster pump located on the farm and used in ridding the lines of water. This accumulation exploded when Goodman entered the power house and lighted a match. He was thrown through the door. He threw himself in a snow bank thus putting out the fire that was consuming his clothing, then walked to his home on the same farm where the accident occurred. It is not believed his injuries, while painful, will leave any permanent affect. Goodman, who is 28 years of age, succeeded his father to the job when the elder Goodman dropped dead from heart disease a few months ago.

FATAL STABBING AFFRAY.

Bert Allen Dies From Wounds Inflicted With a Butcher Knife Near Fa-gundus, Forest County.

Bert Allen, aged 30 years, a teamster at Hunter's Camp, Forest county, was killed Monday in a stabbing affray which occurred on the road leading from Fa-gundus to Nelltown. The facts of the case quite meagre at this writing, but it is said Mrs. George Strain admits the stabbing while protecting herself from assault by the slain man.

Shortly after noon Monday Mrs. Strain came to her home at Hunter's Camp, telling of having been attacked by Allen, who was riding with her and her husband from Trunkeyville. A number of men went back along the road to Trunkeyville and after going about three-quarters of a mile, found Allen. He had struggled around in the snow and had at last fallen over an embankment. He was taken to the Glenn boarding house at Hunter's Camp and Dr. George Slight of Tidouste was summoned. Before he could reach there, however, the man had died.

Allen was at Tidouste Monday morning and left there on the southbound train during the forenoon, getting off at Trunkeyville. There he met Mr. and Mrs. Strain, who had been in the village assisting in butchering some hogs. Strain had a team and a pair of hobsels and Allen is said to have asked for a ride to Hunter's Camp, near where he was employed. It is alleged that the men drank considerably before leaving Trunkeyville, but when seen passing through Fa-gundus they appeared to be in a good humor.

The next heard of the party was when Mrs. Strain came to the boarding house conducted by J. L. Glenn, Jr., where she arrived almost in a state of collapse, and could give no coherent account of what had taken place, except that she had a struggle with Allen, and which her appearance showed to some extent.

Shortly after that Strain appeared at the camp, asked the assistance of some of the men in bringing Allen to the camp, and the posse went to the spot where the unfortunate man lay and brought him to the Glenn home, where he died about 7 o'clock in the evening. It was found that he had a bad knife wound in the back which had pierced the left lung, and another terrible cut in the left leg, the knife having gone clear through the thigh close to the hip. Allen made a statement to Mr. Glenn before he died, giving his version of the affray.

Sheriff W. H. Hood and Acting Coroner D. W. Clark went up to the scene early Tuesday morning to investigate the matter, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon they returned having both Strain and his wife in custody. Mr. Glenn, under oath, told the Coroner that Allen said it was Strain who stabbed him.

Strain's story of the affair is to the effect that on the way home he and Allen did considerable walking, and when some distance from the place where the tragedy occurred, he stepped out of the sled and was walking, his wife having hold of the lines. He says he heard Allen "click up the horses" and they started to trotting. He thought nothing strange of it until the team went out of sight some rods ahead. He walked on and after crossing the bridge of West Hickory creek and near the watering trough he found the team tied by the side of the road. Thinking that his wife had walked in from there he untied the horses and drove home, but failed to find his wife. He then drove back to where the team had been standing and started a search for his wife when he came across Allen in the woods in a ravine fully twenty rods from the road. He claims Allen told him that Mrs. Strain had inflicted the wounds, using a butcher knife which he, Strain, had taken to Trunkeyville that morning for butchering purposes. He tried to get him out of the woods but could do nothing single handed, and then is when he went for help. He can't account for his wife getting home without his seeing her, but thinks she must have gone out when he was searching the woods and found Allen.

Sheriff Hood went over the ground and found where Allen had lain and he says that it was at 20 rods from the main road. The Sheriff brought with him the knife with which the cutting was done. It is a large hunting knife carried in a belt and scabbard, and has an edge almost as keen as a razor. Strain says when they left Trunkeyville he unbuckled the belt and threw the outfit in the sleigh.

Both Strain and his wife waived a hearing before Justice Clark shortly after their arrival here and were remanded to jail without bail to await a further hearing and trial at next term of court on a charge of murder.

Allen was married and leaves his wife and two children. He formerly lived in Deerfield twp., three or four miles north of Tidouste, on McAuley hill. He was employed at the Pequignot lumbering camp, which is about a mile from the Hunter camp. The body of Allen will be taken to Tidouste for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Strain are each about 30 years of age and have five children ranging in age from 2 to 12 years, and are now being cared for by kind hearted neighbors. Mrs. Strain is a frail little woman weighing about 100 pounds. She is an adopted daughter of Alex. Brookmire, who lives in the vicinity of the Strain home. Both Allen and Strain are undersized men weighing about 125 pounds each.

A Tionesta Cake For a London Wedding.

Mrs. J. H. Derickson was engaged yesterday in the pleasant task of baking a huge wedding cake which goes to London England, and will there figure in the festivities attending the marriage of an accomplished American girl to a worthy young Hollander, who is engaged with an extensive Dutch banking institution in London. The names of the affianced are Miss Rachel Dunn, daughter of Mrs. Kate C. Dunn, and Mr. Bernhardt Roelink, and the wedding day is set for the middle of April. It was Mrs. Derickson who in a spirit of neighborly kindness, baked the elegant wedding cake that added sweetness to the pretty ceremony that united Dr. Thomas Dunn and Miss Kate Cobb in marriage in Tionesta more than a quarter century ago, and the taste of that splendid viand has doubtless ever remained as a sweet memory with the young bride of that day; hence the order from over the ocean for a duplicate of it for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Dunn and her daughter have been abroad for a number of years, where Miss Dunn's musical talents have brought her into great favor, and have frequently received flattering comment by eminent critics in London's press. The young couple will continue their residence in the great metropolis after their wedding, and since it is a pure love match, and not a titled nobility affair, we are sure all the Tionesta friends of Mrs. Dunn and her charming daughter will join the REPUBLICAN in extending congratulations and best wishes on this happy occasion.

Men Who Still Believe

That they can wear only custom-made clothing are invited to call and undecieve themselves. We do better than make to order, we make to fit. The old superstitions about custom-made clothing are going the way of the unlucky Friday and 13 at the table delusions since we introduced our kind of ready-to-wear garments—the clothing that enables a man to dress in the custom-made style at the ready-made price.

This is one of the few stores where people are never urged to buy, but are always welcome to look. The light of day shines on every stitch and seam. Our methods are open and above board. We want your trade, but we mean to get it by fair means. We do not want your money if we cannot give you a full equivalent.
